

Children's System Redesign Opportunities for Feedback

The Department encourages families and providers to become involved and provide feedback on the Redesign.

The following opportunities will be available over the next few months:

Children's System Redesign Website

This website is designed to communicate updates regarding the Redesign, and provide opportunities to hear from families and providers.

When visiting the website, be sure to look for the following resources to assist you with this process:

- Frequently asked questions
- Results of family and provider surveys
- Draft copy of rules for comment

Formal Negotiated Rule Making Meeting

This meeting is to provide families and providers the opportunity to review the draft rules and submit comments.

The draft rules will be posted on the website prior to this meeting to allow time to compile questions and comments.

Families and stakeholders will also be able to submit comments on the website prior to the formal meeting.

Proposed Rules Published

Following the negotiated rule making meeting, the Department will make changes based on the comments we have received.

The Department will publish rules in the Idaho Administrative Bulletin for an additional comment period.

After the rules are published, the Department will have several hearings where people can attend to make comments, or submit comments through email.

Following the comment period, the Department will make additional changes and submit final rules to the Idaho Legislature.

Details for all of these feedback opportunities will be available at www.redesignforchildren.medicaid.idaho.gov.

Please visit the website frequently to stay up to date and help us design a program that works for you!
